

Suburban Social News

The Events of the Past Week Briefly Told.

Brightwood.

Edward Bloom, of Bellefontaine, O., is the guest of his parents.

Mr. Frank McKenna, of Redkey, is the guest of relatives in Fairland.

Miss Maud Sangston, of Lebanon, is the guest of Miss Glenn Reid.

Mrs. George Clark and children are visiting relatives in Union City.

Mrs. Frank Worley has returned from a visit to relatives in Franklin.

Miss Tillie Kiser has returned from a visit to relatives in Fairland.

Mrs. Wells Essex has returned from a visit to relatives in Columbus.

Mr. Charles Rehling has returned from a visit to relatives in Chicago.

Mrs. Andrew E. Miller, who has returned from a visit to relatives in Springfield, Ill.

Mr. Frank Williams, of Chicago, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. O. De Camp.

Mr. H. Hayes, of Zelma, Ind., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Baker.

Ruth, Norine and Frank Todd, of Goodland, are the guests of Mrs. P. McKenna last week.

Mr. B. A. Brown and family have returned from a short visit to relatives in McCordsville.

Mrs. Mary Gale, of Crawfordsville, who was the guest of Mrs. Fred Fellows, has returned home.

Miss Alta Funkhouser returned yesterday from a two weeks' visit to relatives in Evansville, Ind.

Mrs. Albert Cramer and children, who spent the holidays with relatives in Richmond, have returned home.

Mrs. Katherine Gaudier, of Terre Haute, who was the guest of Mrs. James Messall, has returned to her home.

Mr. Leslie Miller, who was the guest of his brother, E. D. Miller, and wife, has returned to his home in Martinsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Stafford Baker and Mrs. Lotta Garwood, of Youngstown, O., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Baker.

Mrs. Laura Schull and children, of Fortville, were the guests of Mrs. Schull's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McAdams.

Mrs. George Thompson and Miss Daisy Thompson, of Indianapolis, who were the guests of Mrs. Oris Partlow, have returned to their home.

Mrs. and Mrs. Milton Bennett, of Sidney, O., who were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Johnson, have returned to their home.

Mrs. Thomas Holman and daughter Lilian, and Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Holman have returned from a visit to relatives and friends in Cincinnati.

Seola Leach, daughter of Rebekah, No. 13, elected the following officers last week: Noble grand, Mrs. Anna Waller; vice grand, Mrs. Nellie B. Miller; treasurer, Mrs. Nellie Newmyer.

Clermont.

Miss M. Vinta Meyers is attending school at Ben Davis.

Miss Deer, of Franklin, is the guest of the Misses Chambers.

Miss Blanche Wilkins is visiting relatives in Traders Point, who were the guests of Mrs. Oris Partlow.

Miss Carrie Poudry has returned from a visit to relatives in Crawfordsville.

Miss Verline Miller went to Summitville last week to attend the wedding of Miss Pearl Atchison, of Cincinnati.

Mr. C. C. Miller, of Haughville, who spent the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ash, has returned home.

Miss Mabel Parker, who has been spending the holidays with her sister, Mrs. Lon Smith, has returned to her home in Traders Point.

Mr. Charles Howard, who spent the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Howard, has returned to his home in Greencastle.

Flackville.

Mr. John Hasler, of Ohio, is the guest of relatives here.

Miss Grace Miller is the guest of Miss Katherine Todd.

Mrs. F. J. Kelly has returned from a visit to relatives in Elwood.

Mrs. W. W. McKee has returned from a visit to relatives in Elwood.

Mr. George Todd has returned from a visit to friends in Greencastle.

Miss Ora Farrington is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. George Todd, who is attending the wedding of Miss Nellie Brannon.

The Misses Nothing have returned from a visit to relatives in Shelbyville.

Mr. Burra Heller has returned from a short visit to relatives in Indianapolis.

Mrs. B. Barnes, of Indianapolis, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Hazel Miller.

Mr. Harry Ward has returned to his home in Greencastle, after a week's visit with Mrs. Louis Todd.

Mr. Charles Howard, who was the guest of Miss Katherine Todd during the holidays, has returned to his home in Greencastle.

Haughville.

Mrs. Samuel Bartel is visiting relatives in Muncie.

Mr. Charles Bartel has returned to his home in Mattoon, Ill.

Curtis Clark has returned from a visit to friends in Greencastle.

Mr. William S. Riddle is visiting friends and relatives in Peoria, Ill.

Mr. Oscar Riddle is attending several weeks with friends in Pittsburg.

Mrs. John Medsker and daughter Flander have returned from a visit to relatives in Knightstown.

Mr. V. V. Fish, of Anderson, who spent the holidays with his aunt, Mrs. Floyd, has returned to his home.

Mr. Wilbur Curry, after spending the holidays here, has returned to his home in Chicago.

The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Chamberlain have returned from a visit to their daughter, Mrs. Jacobs, in Chicago, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Smith, of Pittsburg, who were the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Sherman Mackey, have returned to their home.

Mr. James Dohrland and sister, Mrs. Lillian Van Fosse, have returned from a visit to relatives in Bloomington.

Miss Helen Carver visited relatives in Alexandria, Va.

Mr. Sam Ireland, of Xenia, O., is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Moore.

Miss Nina Price returned yesterday from Kokomo, where she visited friends.

Miss Anna Morris returned yesterday from a two weeks' visit in Leavenworth, Kan.

Miss Evelyn Kier has returned from a week's visit with relatives in Trafalgar.

Miss Grace Carver returned yesterday from a nine week stay in St. Louis, Mo.

Miss Blanche Noel, who is attending Indiana University, visited college last week.

Prof. James Hall left yesterday for Cleveland, O., where he will deliver a lecture to-day.

Miss Evelyn Butler, after a short visit to her home, will return to Anderson to-day.

Miss Clara MacIntyre, who spent the vacation in Chicago, returned home Thursday.

Miss Nevada Stacy, of Springfield, Ill., is the guest of Miss Anna Moore, on Washington street.

Mr. George P. Alexander, of Kendallville, who was the guest of Mr. George Brown and family last week.

Mrs. W. S. Moffett returned Thursday from Lebanon, where she spent a week with her brother.

Mr. John Althoff, who is teaching in the Kokomo High School, is spending two weeks in Irvington.

Mrs. George W. Brown returned Friday from Springfield, Ill., where they visited Mr. Coleman's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Moore, of Ladoga, Ind., were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Moore last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Lott, who were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Cross assisted by Mrs. John Eyrick, Mrs. Ida G. De Vore, Mrs. J. Wilkins and Mrs. Charles Hart.

Miss Katie Mathews, of Brooklyn, Ind., was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Mathews last week.

Mrs. George Overstreet, who was visiting relatives in Newark, O., returned home Tuesday.

Mrs. Margaret Turpin, of Clermont, was the guest of her son, Wallace Turpin and family, during the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Snowden and son, of Muncie, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Craig.

The second section of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Morris-street Christian Church met Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. Henry Shephard as hostess.

Mrs. Martha Williams and daughter Flora, of Arlington, and Miss Sallie Hollander, of Jeffersonville, who were the guests of Mrs. J. N. Bruce, have returned to their homes.

CHANGES IN NAMES.

Privilege of Literary Folk—The Dropping of "Mr."

New York Press.

It is our privilege to change the editorial, or the literary, name as often as we please, except at the bottom of a check. There is one bright fellow who signs a check three different ways, and each is good for the money every time. He has temporary homes in New York, Chicago and Denver.

In New York he is known as Henry Terence McCloy, in Chicago as Henry T. McCloy and in Denver as Terence McCloy. He half expects to acquire a fourth home in Los Angeles, where he will be H. Terence McCloy, Literary folk, or any and all folk who write any and all stuff, change the style of their Christian and given names often than people who depend less on editorial caprice for sustenance. This habit of taking off and putting on is not confined to the light weights either.

The latest notable change is made by Col. George Brinton McClellan Harvey, who has been conspicuously successful in the daily newspaper business, in commercial life, in writing, in periodicals, in journalism and in publishing. At first we knew him as George Harvey, then as G. M. Harvey, then as Col. G. M. Harvey, and now, then as George B. M. Harvey, which, I believe, is his regular business style.

Now he, having undertaken the editorship of a weekly paper, puts his name at the masthead thus—"Edited by George Harvey."

This big monthly magazine has been edited by George B. M. Harvey. The changes are that George without the B. M. will be no understudy to George with the B. M. It is a matter of fact to acquire fame and fortune for six names.

Twenty years ago it was the fashion to use the same name in full and spread to the fullest extent. About that period a brilliant article came among us from Harold and Madeleine, as they were called, Ripley Hitchcock. Later, when he became more noted, he was J. R. W. Hitchcock. He-day he was J. R. W. Hitchcock. He-day he was J. R. W. Hitchcock. He-day he was J. R. W. Hitchcock.

De Koven has made a name of which his children will be proud. He is now Richard Croker never amounted to a row of pins until he dropped "Webster." Whitehead is not a name to be proud of, but it is a name to be proud of, and it is a name to be proud of.

When Albert Marshall Palmer, L. L. B., was dean of the law school and autocrat of the Madison Square Hotel, he was called "Mr. Palmer." He was called "Mr. Palmer" and he was called "Mr. Palmer."

Mr. Foster Eacret, of North Dakota, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Howard last week.

Mrs. John Pettit, of Southport, was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. William Jones, who was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Cornell last week.

Mrs. Jane Powell, who spent the summer with her daughter in Wisconsin, has returned home.

Mr. L. N. Carpenter, of Spencer, who was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Manning, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ryerson, of Franklin, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Cornell last week.

Mrs. Milton Hiatt, who was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Roy Ross, has returned to her home in Sheridan.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Hazelrigg, who spent the holidays with relatives in Carmel, Ill., have returned home.

The home department of the Baptist Church gave an entertainment in the church parlors Thursday night.

Mrs. Mary Horton and daughter Horace, of Louisville, Ky., were here attending the wedding of Miss Nellie Brannon.

Mrs. Elijah Brownell and daughter, who were the guests of Mrs. T. C. Campbell, have returned to their home in Bellefontaine, O.

The Rev. and Mrs. C. Claude Travis have returned from Crawfordsville, where they were the guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Travis.

The Current Topics Club will meet Wednesday night with Mr. Harrison Ogden, of West Third street, as the speaker. S. Doan will address the club. His subject is "John Bright."

West Indianapolis.

Mrs. Frank Lout is visiting relatives in Anderson.

Mrs. E. H. GoBauer is visiting relatives in Madison, Ind.

Mrs. W. H. Dunn is the guest of relatives in Madison, Ind.

Mr. Harry Marley is visiting relatives and friends in Spencer.

Mrs. Fred McClain has returned from a visit to friends in Plainfield.

Mr. George Wright has returned from a visit to relatives in Marion.

Mr. and Mrs. Truax have returned from a visit to relatives in Columbus.

Miss Edwina Day, of Bedford, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. Cassidy.

Mrs. S. Denny has returned from Greencastle, where she spent the holidays.

Mrs. Elizabeth Snoddy has returned from a visit to her mother at Coatesville.

Miss Margaret Withers, of Knightsville, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Reid.

Mr. Walter Foster, of Brazil, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lyons last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lemmer have returned from a visit to relatives in Bloomington.

Mr. Earl Chapman, of Memphis, Tenn., is the guest of Mr. Charles Robinson and family.

Mr. Frank Miller, of Kempton, is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Miller.

Mrs. Luella Hockett and son Maxwell, of Newman, Ill., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Davis.

The members of the Twentieth Century Club entertained their husbands with a banquet New Year's night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Fox. The hostess was

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

RAPID GROWTH OF THE INSTITUTION SINCE ITS FOUNDING.

Magnitude of the Work Detailed in Librarian's Annual Report—The Copyright Branch.

Washington Post.

In the annual report of the business of his office, recently made to the President, Librarian Herbert Putnam, of the Library of Congress, has given to the public an exhaustive and comprehensive review of the workings of the great institution over which he presides, from its inception to the present day. This information is given as a second portion of the regular report of the workings of the library for the past fiscal year, and has been prepared with much care and attention to details.

The most important matter touched upon in the report is the copyright office, and its work in connection with the Librarian Putnam states:

"The copyright office is simply an office of record and only registers claims of copyright. It does not issue copyrights in the sense in which the Patent Office grants letters-patent, and furnishes no guarantee of literary or artistic property. A claim presented in the prescribed form for a proper subject of copyright by any person legally entitled to such registration is recorded without investigation as to the truthfulness of the representations. The office has no authority to question any claim as to authorship or proprietorship or to give consideration to conflicting claims, and for obvious reasons can give no statement of opinion upon questions of copyright which are the rights of conflicting parties. But questions of fact as to copyright registration are answered by statements as to the indices of the office disclosed."

METHOD OF COPYRIGHTING.

"The procedure requisite for recording a claim of copyright is simple, and does not require the aid of a notary nor the services of an agent. No statement is necessary except the direct application for registration, no papers are required to be sworn to, nor any certificate to be furnished. A title must be filed, or, in case of an original work of art, a description. The title must be accompanied with a statement of the nature of the article, the nationality of the author, the full name of the claimant of copyright, and the statutory fee in order to aid applicants the Copyright Office prints blank application forms, which are furnished without charge upon request, together with circulars and bulletins containing full instructions. While, however, the steps are simple and very simple, they must be exactly complied with, as some of them are prerequisites to any protection of the work. The title must be filed, and a print of the title must be filed, and two copies of the article itself while the nature of the work is being made within a year after publication."

The growth of the business of this branch of the library service has been rapid. The business was transferred from the Patent Office to the Librarian of Congress in 1870. The first year the number of applications for copyright was 12,888. The increase from that time forward, while irregular, has been rapid. In 1900 the number of applications was 37,367, almost eight times the number filed the first year of the service in the Library of Congress.

The section of the report devoted to the history of the library, part of which is devoted to the separate heads, under each of which is given a short descriptive history. From this it is seen that the library was established under authority of Congress in 1800, and that the first Librarian, Thomas Jefferson, was appointed in 1802.

Up to 1853 the growth of the library's collection of books had not been very pronounced, but since then the number of volumes has increased from 72,000 to 1,000,000, and the growth of the collections of maps, music, manuscripts, etc., has been rapid.

From 1853 to 1884 the library had been in charge of the clerks of the House of Representatives, also appointed Librarians by the President. Shortly after Congress had voted the purchase of the Jefferson building, and before it had reached Washington, President Polk died, and March 21, 1845, appointed George Watterston Librarian. He remained in charge till 1853, when he was succeeded by John Silva Meahan, appointed by President Jackson May 18, 1853. The latter was succeeded by John G. Stephens, of Virginia, clerk of the House of Representatives, reported in 1862 that the library was in a state of ruin.

After the burning of the Capitol and the destruction of the library, Thomas Jefferson's collection was saved, and was sold to the government, and it was purchased for $23,500. This was really the beginning of the present collection of the library.

CONTAINS A MILLION BOOKS.

The growth of the library's collection of books had not been very pronounced, but since then the number of volumes has increased from 72,000 to 1,000,000, and the growth of the collections of maps, music, manuscripts, etc., has been rapid.

From 1853 to 1884 the library had been in charge of the clerks of the House of Representatives, also appointed Librarians by the President. Shortly after Congress had voted the purchase of the Jefferson building, and before it had reached Washington, President Polk died, and March 21, 1845, appointed George Watterston Librarian. He remained in charge till 1853, when he was succeeded by John Silva Meahan, appointed by President Jackson May 18, 1853. The latter was succeeded by John G. Stephens, of Virginia, clerk of the House of Representatives, reported in 1862 that the library was in a state of ruin.

After the burning of the Capitol and the destruction of the library, Thomas Jefferson's collection was saved, and was sold to the government, and it was purchased for $23,500. This was really the beginning of the present collection of the library.

CONTAINS A MILLION BOOKS.

The growth of the library's collection of books had not been very pronounced, but since then the number of volumes has increased from 72,000 to 1,000,000, and the growth of the collections of maps, music, manuscripts, etc., has been rapid.

From 1853 to 1884 the library had been in charge of the clerks of the House of Representatives, also appointed Librarians by the President. Shortly after Congress had voted the purchase of the Jefferson building, and before it had reached Washington, President Polk died, and March 21, 1845, appointed George Watterston Librarian. He remained in charge till 1853, when he was succeeded by John Silva Meahan, appointed by President Jackson May 18, 1853. The latter was succeeded by John G. Stephens, of Virginia, clerk of the House of Representatives, reported in 1862 that the library was in a state of ruin.

After the burning of the Capitol and the destruction of the library, Thomas Jefferson's collection was saved, and was sold to the government, and it was purchased for $23,500. This was really the beginning of the present collection of the library.

CONTAINS A MILLION BOOKS.

The growth of the library's collection of books had not been very pronounced, but since then the number of volumes has increased from 72,000 to 1,000,000, and the growth of the collections of maps, music, manuscripts, etc., has been rapid.

From 1853 to 1884 the library had been in charge of the clerks of the House of Representatives, also appointed Librarians by the President. Shortly after Congress had voted the purchase of the Jefferson building, and before it had reached Washington, President Polk died, and March 21, 1845, appointed George Watterston Librarian. He remained in charge till 1853, when he was succeeded by John Silva Meahan, appointed by President Jackson May 18, 1853. The latter was succeeded by John G. Stephens, of Virginia, clerk of the House of Representatives, reported in 1862 that the library was in a state of ruin.

After the burning of the Capitol and the destruction of the library, Thomas Jefferson's collection was saved, and was sold to the government, and it was purchased for $23,500. This was really the beginning of the present collection of the library.

CONTAINS A MILLION BOOKS.

The growth of the library's collection of books had not been very pronounced, but since then the number of volumes has increased from 72,000 to 1,000,000, and the growth of the collections of maps, music, manuscripts, etc., has been rapid.

From 1853 to 1884 the library had been in charge of the clerks of the House of Representatives, also appointed Librarians by the President. Shortly after Congress had voted the purchase of the Jefferson building, and before it had reached Washington, President Polk died, and March 21, 1845, appointed George Watterston Librarian. He remained in charge till 1853, when he was succeeded by John Silva Meahan, appointed by President Jackson May 18, 1853. The latter was succeeded by John G. Stephens, of Virginia, clerk of the House of Representatives, reported in 1862 that the library was in a state of ruin.

After the burning of the Capitol and the destruction of the library, Thomas Jefferson's collection was saved, and was sold to the government, and it was purchased for $23,500. This was really the beginning of the present collection of the library.

CONTAINS A MILLION BOOKS.

The growth of the library's collection of books had not been very pronounced, but since then the number of volumes has increased from 72,000 to 1,000,000, and the growth of the collections of maps, music, manuscripts, etc., has been rapid.

From 1853 to 1884 the library had been in charge of the clerks of the House of Representatives, also appointed Librarians by the President. Shortly after Congress had voted the purchase of the Jefferson building, and before it had reached Washington, President Polk died, and March 21, 1845, appointed George Watterston Librarian. He remained in charge till 1853, when he was succeeded by John Silva Meahan, appointed by President Jackson May 18, 1853. The latter was succeeded by John G. Stephens, of Virginia, clerk of the House of Representatives, reported in 1862 that the library was in a state of ruin.

After the burning of the Capitol and the destruction of the library, Thomas Jefferson's collection was saved, and was sold to the government, and it was purchased for $23,500. This was really the beginning of the present collection of the library.

CONTAINS A MILLION BOOKS.

The growth of the library's collection of books had not been very pronounced, but since then the number of volumes has increased from 72,000 to 1,000,000, and the growth of the collections of maps, music, manuscripts, etc., has been rapid.

From 1853 to 1884 the library had been in charge of the clerks of the House of Representatives, also appointed Librarians by the President. Shortly after Congress had voted the purchase of the Jefferson building, and before it had reached Washington, President Polk died, and March 21, 1845, appointed George Watterston Librarian. He remained in charge till 1853, when he was succeeded by John Silva Meahan, appointed by President Jackson May 18, 1853. The latter was succeeded by John G. Stephens, of Virginia, clerk of the House of Representatives, reported in 1862 that the library was in a state of ruin.

After the burning of the Capitol and the destruction of the library, Thomas Jefferson's collection was saved, and was sold to the government, and it was purchased for $23,500. This was really the beginning of the present collection of the library.

CONTAINS A MILLION BOOKS.

The growth of the library's collection of books had not been very pronounced, but since then the number of volumes has increased from 72,000 to 1,000,000, and the growth of the collections of maps, music, manuscripts, etc., has been rapid.

From 1853 to 1884 the library had been in charge of the clerks of the House of Representatives, also appointed Librarians by the President. Shortly after Congress had voted the purchase of the Jefferson building, and before it had reached Washington, President Polk died, and March 21, 1845, appointed George Watterston Librarian. He remained in charge till 1853, when he was succeeded by John Silva Meahan, appointed by President Jackson May 18, 1853. The latter was succeeded by John G. Stephens, of Virginia, clerk of the House of Representatives, reported in 1862 that the library was in a state of ruin.

After the burning of the Capitol and the destruction of the library, Thomas Jefferson's collection was saved, and was sold to the government, and it was purchased for $23,500. This was really the beginning of the present collection of the library.

CONTAINS A MILLION BOOKS.

The growth of the library's collection of books had not been very pronounced, but since then the number of volumes has increased from 72,000 to 1,000,000, and the growth of the collections of maps, music, manuscripts, etc., has been rapid.

From 1853 to 1884 the library had been in charge of the clerks of the House of Representatives, also appointed Librarians by the President. Shortly after Congress had voted the purchase of the Jefferson building, and before it had reached Washington, President Polk died, and March 21, 1845, appointed George Watterston Librarian. He remained in charge till 1853, when he was succeeded by John Silva Meahan, appointed by President Jackson May 18, 1853. The latter was succeeded by John G. Stephens, of Virginia, clerk of the House of Representatives, reported in 1862 that the library was in a state of ruin.